Welcome brothers, guests, and friends to the One Hundred Black Men the 42nd Annual Gala, Giant Steps to Power: A Salute to Excellence. This evening’s Honorees hail from the apex of their respective careers with an eagle’s eye focus on uplifting and advocating for underserved communities. They include James Brown, Yasmin H. Cornelius, Brian Flores, Eric Mower, Trayce Parker, Daniel Schulman, Greta R. Strong, Elizabeth Velez, Seth Waugh and Rudy Wynter. Thank you for being bold in your vision and believing in the work done by the members of One Hundred Black Men. We will also surprise one of our own members, Chancellor of the Department of Education David C. Banks, with an award for his tireless efforts in changing the trajectory of tens of thousands of families through education.

Cheers, Champ!

Founded in 1963, One Hundred Black Men, is one of the preeminent organizations for Black men. We were founded on the principals of friendship, cordiality, and unity. We are gathered here this evening, at the legendary Jazz at Lincoln Center, for more than just an awards ceremony or gala. We are here to invest in the minds of the next generation highlighting our scholarship recipients and raising funds for the next cohort of scholars. The success of this spectacular event is driven by Robert B. Brown and Jermaine D. Huell. These men steered the ship as this year’s gala Co-Chairs. While these two men served as leaders, the team that they put together proves that everyone played a huge role in our overall success. I cannot forget the countless hours Courtney A. Bennett and Dina L. Gardner put towards this endeavor. Thank you!

An immense level of gratitude is given to our sponsors and stakeholders for their financial support and multi-year commitment. We are, because of you.

I look forward to seeing you all at our 15th Annual Dr. Roscoe C. Brown, Jr. Golf Classic in early August. And, we welcome you to bring an extra friend to our gala next year as we celebrate our 60th year anniversary.

Let’s continue to be the change that we want to see in the world and... Let’s Keep Winning!

Best regards,

Aldrin K. Enis

@businessnys
Greetings!

Thank you for attending 42nd Annual Benefit Gala of One Hundred Black Men of New York (OHBM). And special thanks to all of our gala sponsors and honorees who made our second Day of the One Hundred so very special.

This year’s gala theme, Taking Giant Steps to Power: a Salute to Excellence, signifies the collective strength of our members, partners and this city to hurdle obstacles as we continue to serve people most in need of our help. We joyfully step into the role of servant-leader as we implement our second Day of the One Hundred and recommit to leveraging our collective talent, abilities, and energy toward achieving meaningful gains for the Black community. With earnest support from a growing list of partners like Eric Mower and Associates, Moet Hennessy, the NYC Young Men’s Initiative, Enterprise Holdings, Pace University the NFL and others, OHBM has expanded services, enhanced our brand image and continues to make a national impact as we Open Every Door and prepare our future leaders to take Giant Steps Power!

Giant Steps in Mentoring: In one year, we have grown our Junior One Hundred Mentoring Program from under 100 to over 600 young people by providing workshops in character building, financial literacy, SAT success, coding, entrepreneurship, rites of passage, community/police relations and more. Additionally, OHBM is pleased to announce the launching of our first performing arts program, the Junior One Hundred Jazz All Stars who performed in this evening’s program.

Giant Steps in Education: OHBM’s legacy of youth development and education is embedded in the founding of the first Eagle Academy for Young Men in 2004. There are now six such schools serving over 4,000 students under the leadership of the Eagle Academy Foundation.

Giant Steps in Economic Empowerment: OHBM is helping small businesses around New York State through targeted grants (over $2million distributed since 2020) to sustain their businesses during hard times. We are also helping corporations diversify their workforce, boards, and vendor supply chains by creating pipelines for our graduates and opportunities for small businesses to obtain contracts that can grow their companies exponentially.

Giant Steps in Health and Wellness: OHBM has expanded to include informative virtual and live programs for youth, men, and the community. In the past year, these programs addressed the COVID-19 pandemic, adolescent and adult mental health, prostate cancer, holistic medicine, medicinal cannabis, high blood pressure, and other general health disparities. Under the banner of health and wellness, we also attack food insecurity by partnering with churches to feed thousands of New Yorkers each holiday season. With our partner, Mount Sinai Health Systems, OHBM will help launch the first prostate health mobile unit in New York City funded by Robert Smith.

Giant Steps to Power - In 2021, our Annual Dr. Roscoe C. Brown Golf Classic grew from $100,000 to $300,000 to fund college scholarships and youth development programs. Through mentoring, scholarships, and paid corporate internships, we create pipelines to corporate America for students seeking careers.

Giant Steps to Power - Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer recently announced a $4.9 million appropriation for One Hundred Black Men of New York to provide restorative justice programming. More important than this being our first multi-million dollar grant, it allows us to serve the most marginalized, misunderstood and underrepresented, and underserved groups in our city--New Yorkers involved with the Criminal Justice System.

Are you ready to Take Giant Steps with us? If so, you can join a growing list of OHBM partners that includes Emblem Health, John Catsimatidis (Red Apple Group), L+M Development Partners, PGA of America, NY National Grid, Qualcomm, Uber, and United Airlines, all of which have made multi-year leadership gifts to help open every door of opportunity for our community.

We invite YOU to become a partner in our success by texting OHBMGALA to 41444.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the New York chapter of the One Hundred Black Men of America, I am ecstatic to extend warm greetings to our friends and supporters. Fifty-Nine years ago, our founders envisioned an organization destined to grow and enrich the quality of life of individuals that look like them—guided by the principles of brotherhood and service, which is the hallmark of the One Hundred Black Men. I am pleased to report that our chapter is vibrant and thriving today as it has been since its inception. We salute our honorees and sponsors for their unrelenting support and dedication to our chapter.

With your help, we will continue to fulfill our promise to provide transformative and substantive programming through a multi-faceted approach. Take pride in knowing that you play a vital role in positively impacting an unquantifiable number of young men and women in their pursuit of reaching their highest potential.

Special thanks to all our chapter members for their commitment to preserving the rich legacy of our organization. We are all composers committing ourselves to be the men our children will look up to and emulate. The Giant steps we take will allow the future to take smaller steps to get to their destination.

With profound gratitude,

Robert Brown

The Junior One Hundred Jazz All Stars (JOHJASz)

JOHJASz teaches jazz, an African American indigenous music, to young musicians in the New York City area. Program goals are to help musicians improve their craft; raise their level of consciousness concerning the arts; improve their socio-emotional intellect; and use the arts, holistically, to improve their lives and environment. Each JOHJASz musician is paired with a coach, who is highly proficient on the same instrument, to perform standard and original jazz repertoire that will be performed throughout New York City. OHBM members mentor our musicians and provide workshops that cover the business of music, life skills, financial literacy, career and college preparation, social skills, etiquette, and character development. Eligible students are offered opportunities to receive college scholarships and internships through OHBM.

One Hundred Black Men of New York is committed to opening doors of opportunity to students, members, and the community.
Dear Friends,

Please accept my warmest greetings as you gather with One Hundred Black Men of New York (OHBM) to celebrate its 42nd Annual Benefit Gala, “Taking Giant Steps to Power: A Salute to Excellence.” I am grateful for the opportunity to recognize the exemplary work of OHBM and tonight’s distinguished honorees on this wonderful occasion.

Since 1963, One Hundred Black Men of New York has brought together the leading members of our community to advance the empowerment of Black Americans all across the city by promoting upward mobility, economic empowerment, and wellness through mentoring and other programs. Students who participate in the curriculum created by One Hundred Black Men of New York go on to receive college scholarships, internships, and other opportunities in overwhelming numbers -- a testament to the effectiveness of these programs, and this great organization's penchant for transforming lives.

That is precisely why I was proud to personally award One Hundred Black Men $5,000,000 in congressionally directed spending from this year’s federal budget. I applaud One Hundred Black Men of New York for opening the doors of opportunity for many. Though these are troubling times, OHBM is proving that it was built for moments like these and is forging through with a collective passion to create and sustain positive change in all NYC communities.

Furthermore, I would like to spotlight tonight’s honorees: Eric Mower, Owner & CEO of Mower & Associates; Trayce Parker, East Region President, UPS; Seth Waugh, President of the PGA of America; Rudy Wynters, New York President, National Grid; Yasmin Cornelius, VP of Community Relations, L+M; Dan Schulman, CEO of PayPal; James Brown, Award-winning sports journalist, CBS; Liz Velez, Chairman Emeritus of the New York Builders Congress and Greta Strong, Weill-Cornell. It is my pleasure to join everyone gathered here tonight in recognizing these exceptional individuals for their many accomplishments and for their commitment to the mission of One Hundred Black Men of New York.

On behalf of all New Yorkers, I thank One Hundred Black Men of New York and all its supporters for the sincere work in building a just, fair, and equitable society. I am confident that OHBM will continue to serve our state and nation for many more years to come. Best wishes for a fruitful evening.

Sincerely,

Charles E. Schumer
United States Senator
CONGRATULATIONS TO

AND ALL OF THE HONOREES

CBS SPORTS
James Brown is a special correspondent for CBS News. In February 2006, he became host for CBS’ NFL pre-game show, “The NFL Today,” and has twice hosted the Network’s Super Bowl pre-game show. Brown hosts the Sports Emmy Award winning “Inside the NFL” on Showtime.

Brown joined CBS Sports in 1984, as part of the broadcast team for NFL and college basketball and reported on the NBA Finals.

In Brown’s book, “Role of a Lifetime: Reflections on Faith, Family and Significant Living,” he relays how he found the role he was meant to play, highlighting the good and bad decisions he made along the way and how one discovers life’s purpose.

“JB” has three Emmy Awards; the 2009 Dick Schaap Memorial Award for Media Excellence; 2007 Maxwell Football Club’s Excellence in Broadcasting Award; Dallas All Sports Association Award for Excellence in Sports Journalism. He was the first recipient of the Pat Summerall Award in 2006. In 2005, he received the Director’s Award for Broadcasting from The 100 BMOA. Brown was a 2010 honoree as one of the “Faces of Black History,” which included Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Rosa Parks. Other awards: International Black Broadcasters Association’s Broadcasting Excellence Award, 1999 Sportscaster of the Year (Studio Host) by the American Sportscaster Association, Black Broadcasters Alliance Golden Mike Award (1998), two NATAS Emmys including the Glenn Brenner Award for excellence in sportscasting (1998), the Quarterback Club of Washington’s Sportscaster of the Year (1996), and “Best Studio Host of the Decade” by Sports Illustrated (2010).

Brown graduated from Harvard with a degree in American Government, was All-Ivy League in his last three seasons, and captain in his senior year. He was inducted into the Harvard Hall of Fame (1996).

Brown and wife, Dorothy, reside in Maryland. Daughter, Katrina, and husband, John, have three daughters, Kaela, Jordyn and Aniya.

Eric Mower has served in leadership roles with a variety of community and professional organizations, recently concluding four years as co-chair and then chair of The Business Council of New York State and continues to serve on the council’s executive committee. He is past director of the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB), USA, Canada and Mexico, and founding chair of the federal Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor Commission. He was named by City & State magazine as #14 on The 2021 Political PR Power 50 in New York and named to City & State magazine’s Responsible 100 list in 2015 and received City & State’s Lifetime Achievement Award for Business Ethics.

In the advertising industry, Mower was inducted into the Association of National Advertisers (ANA) B2B Hall of Fame in 2019. Mower served for two decades as a national board member and officer of the American Association of Advertising Agencies (4A’s) and continues in his 29th year as chair of the 4A’s Government Relations Committee (GRC). For a period of over 10 years Mower served as president of a 100-agency membership, 80-nation international network of independent advertising agencies, while serving as Mower’s CEO.

Mower is in his 32nd year as a trustee of Syracuse University. He is an original member of the S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications Advisory Council. The Newhouse School honors Mower through its annual advertising guest speaker series, “The Eric Mower Advertising Forum.” Syracuse University awarded him its George Arents Pioneer Medal in 2015, the University’s highest alumni recognition.

Mower was born in Manhattan, raised in Queens and went to New York City public schools. He received both his Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees from Syracuse University.

The Mower agency operates out of 10 US cities and is proud to be a supporter of One Hundred Black Men of New York.

The PGA of America CEO Seth Waugh guides the business and overall strategy of one of the world's largest sports organizations, serving its nearly 28,000 PGA Professionals.

Since becoming CEO, the PGA announced a transformational $500 million partnership with Omni Stillwater Woods, the City of Frisco, its Economic and Community Development Corporations and the Frisco Independent School District to relocate PGA Headquarters to Frisco, Texas—site of 26 future PGA of America Championships.

He also steered the signing of the PGA's 11-year television rights deal with CBS and ESPN, as well as a landmark partnership agreement with Rolex. Cadillac was also named as the Official Vehicle of the PGA of America, PGA Championship, KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship and KPMG Women's PGA Championship. Waugh served a prior term as an Independent Director on the PGA Board of Directors. He previously served as a Senior Advisor and then a Managing Director at Silver Lake, and continues as a Senior Advisor. In 2016, he was appointed Non-Executive Chairman of Alex. Brown. Waugh also served in the management of Florida East Coast Industries in 2014.

Waugh spent 13 years at Deutsche Bank, including 10 years as CEO of the Americas. He also served as Deutsche Bank Americas Advisory Board Chairman. A former CEO of Quantitative Financial Strategies, Waugh also spent 11 years at Merrill Lynch, culminating as Global Debt Markets Co-Head. He previously managed Salomon Brothers' Corporate Bond and International Trading desks. Waugh sits on the Board of Directors for several organizations: the International Golf Federation, World Golf Foundation, Official World Golf Rankings, Franklin Templeton Advisors and Yext. He is also on the Advisory Board of Workday, Inc. Waugh served on the FINRA Board of Governors until 2015. Waugh holds a B.A. in Economics and English from Amherst College.

Rudy Wynter is the President of National Grid’s New York business, managing one of the largest utility entities in New York State with 8,000 employees providing electricity and natural gas services to 4.2 million customers. The company’s New York service area spans from Niagara Falls to the forks of Long Island.

In his role, Wynter is accountable for all facets of the New York business including operations, financial and regulatory aspects and managing relationships with government officials, and the communities National Grid serves. Wynter is committed to organizing and delivering safe, reliable and affordable energy to customers, while advancing National Grid’s net zero solutions and New York’s clean energy goals, while leaving no one behind. Under his leadership, National Grid is thinking beyond its conventional energy services to create a more equitable future for every customer and neighborhood it serves. In September 2021, Wynter launched a major initiative, “Project C,” to focus on community investment, workforce development and environmental justice.

In his more than 30-year tenure at National Grid and its legacy companies, Wynter has served in several senior and operational roles, most recently as Chief Operating Officer of the company’s Wholesale Networks & Capital Delivery business, overseeing one of the largest electric transmission networks in the northeast and New England’s first large-scale battery energy storage system.

Wynter has also held senior positions in National Grid’s Shared Services, Customer Operations, Strategic Planning, Engineering, and Operations groups.
Wynter serves on the board of the Partnership for New York City. He is also a member of The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Gas Association, and the Edison Electric Institute.

A native of Brooklyn, Wynter earned his Bachelor’s in Mechanical Engineering from Pratt Institute, and has a Master of Business Administration from Fordham University.
Everywhere Yasmin goes, she is committed to innovation, inclusion, and public service. As Senior Vice President of Community Affairs, she and her team are responsible for leading the community engagement program in L+M Development’s new construction, acquisition, and preservation deals. As “Chief Resident Officer”, Yasmin and her team works to ensure that there is quality of life accountability for the 20,000+ households in the NYC, New Jersey, and Chicago portfolios. In her position, she also builds on her government, political and housing finance experience to successfully cultivate working relationships with resident associations, nonprofit organizations, business partners, elected officials and other key stakeholders.

When COVID-19 hit New York City, L+M Development Partners and its managing agent, C+C Apartment Management, responded quickly to support residents and communities throughout our portfolio. As a preliminary step, Yasmin led an interdepartmental team that established protocols, created strategies, and executed plans to support the personal needs of the company’s residents across the firm. Specifically, her team ensured the food security of high-risk residents while minimizing contagion, by partnering with various municipal agencies, nonprofits, and service providers to deliver meals to properties with the greatest need. This effort resulted in the delivery of over 400,000 meals since March 2020.

Yasmin has over 25 years of experience in the private and public sector and has worked for the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC), New York State Senator Majority Conference, Manhattan Borough President’s Office and was District Manager of Community Board 10M. Her current affiliations include Fordham University Real Estate Institute’s Executive Advisory Council; African American Day Parade, Osborne Association; Community Help in Park Slope (CHiPS) and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. New York Alumnae Chapter. She has also received many awards and accolades for her dedication to social justice and community impact.

Yasmin currently resides in Harlem with her two sons.
Dan Schulman is focused on democratizing and transforming financial services and e-commerce to improve the financial health of billions of people, families and businesses around the world. With extensive corporate experience in payments and mobile technology, Dan is leading PayPal to reimagine how people move and manage money, and how merchants and consumers interact and transact. Dan also has a lifelong commitment to social justice and believes the private sector has a responsibility to serve multiple stakeholders and to improve the state of the world. In 2021, Dan was ranked third on Fortune's list of the World's Greatest Leaders, an honor that recognized individuals for their leadership throughout the pandemic.

The New York Urban League presented Dan with the 2021 Frederick Douglass Award, for his commitment, dedication, and influence to advance the rights of generations of underserved Black Americans. He also received the Voices of Solidarity Award, presented by Vital Voices, for advocating on behalf of women and girls around the world. In 2020, Robert F. Kennedy Human Rights honored Dan with the Ripple of Hope Award, for demonstrating a commitment to social change and a passion for equality, justice and basic human rights.

He has frequently been recognized by Fortune as one of the top 20 Businesspersons of the Year, and has received “Visionary Awards” from the Financial Health Network in 2018 and the Council for Economic Education in 2017 for his promotion of economic and financial literacy. Dan received the 2017 Brennan Legacy Award, established to honor the late Supreme Court justice and his career-long commitment to social justice and “common human dignity.”

Dan is dedicated to building a world where everyone has access to economic opportunity, which he advances through his work as a life member of the Council on Foreign Relations and co-chair of the World Economic Forum’s Steering Committee to promote global financial inclusion.
Dr. Greta Strong is an Assistant Professor of Community Outreach Teaching in the Department of Neurology at Weill Cornell Medical College of Cornell University. She chairs Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, and directs community outreach, engagement, and advocacy in Neurology. She chairs the Community Engagement Business Resource Group in the Office of Institutional Equity, serves on Weill Cornell Dean’s Community Advisory Board, and various institutional committees.

Greta is an Adjunct Professor at Metropolitan College of New York. She is an Executive Mentor, Dissertation Committee Member, and Visiting Professor at St. John Fisher College, EdD program, and a Fulbright Specialist with a focus on community building and partnership for health and welfare through volunteerism.

Dr. Strong is vice-President of Vitiligo Bond Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization, coalition member group of the National Institutes of Health/National Institutes of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases. This foundation supports people living with Vitiligo. She co-chairs the Women’s Roundtable Action Platform of Trinidad and Tobago, a group of women in the diaspora connecting, engaging, and empowering other dynamic women locally and globally through mentorship, education, and training. She is an advisor to Making the Impossible Possible (MIPO), a non-profit organization conducting valuable work in improving the life of immigrant youth and their families residing in the New York Metropolitan area and abroad. MIPO provides professional development training for educators in Haiti, distributes school supplies, and provides scholarships to graduating high school immigrants. She is a board member of Ajalon International Charities, a non-profit group providing philanthropic assistance to twenty college students in Ibadan, Oyo State, Nigeria, and several other grassroot organizations dedicated to the health and welfare of women and children in underserved areas of the world.

For her dedication to educating and enriching the lives of communities here and abroad, she has received proclamations, congressional recognition, and official citations from the New York State Senate, elected officials, and community leaders. She is the recipient of many awards, most notably, National Medal of Honor for Inspiring Initiative – September 12th Guild; National Council of Negro Women’s Executive Leadership Award; MIPO Award - Outstanding Citizenship Hall of Fame; Weill Cornell Medicine - Pioneers in Diversity Award; Metropolitan College of New York - Crystal Award; St. John Fisher College - Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., School of Education Award for Exemplary Performance in Leadership; and Haitian-American Business Network Chamber of Commerce - Leadership and Service Award.
Elizabeth Velez spearheads strategic growth and project diversification for the 50-year-old Velez Organization as President and principal, ensuring that the second-generation construction services firm is one of the longest established and successful in the region. To her credit are hundreds of projects which have come to fruition under her direction, including over 600 units of housing made affordable by State and Federal grants in the Bronx and Harlem, and over ten billion dollars of significant educational, healthcare, and large-scale projects throughout New York.

Today, Ms. Velez is leading the Velez Organization to increasing prominence as the choice builder, construction manager, diversity, equity and inclusion and mentoring partner in New York and beyond. She is a sought-after advocate by numerous public and private institutions on economic development, legislative issues, and the building industry.

Ms. Velez was appointed in 2022 by Governor Kathy Hochul to the Board of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority – the largest public transportation network in North America. She served until 2021 as Commissioner of the NYC Property Tax Reform Commission, which produced public inclusive recommendations to create transparency and equity in the NYC tax system. From 2020 to 2021, she served for both NYC Mayor Bill DeBlasio and NYS Governor Andrew Cuomo on the COVID pandemic advisory and recovery boards, and for the latter, the NYS Stands with Puerto Rico Recovery & Rebuilding Committee, and the NY Memorial Commission for Hurricane Maria. In her advocacy role for the design and building industry of New York, Ms. Velez was Chair of the New York Building Congress, the preeminent A/E/C industry group – the first person of color and only the second woman to serve in that role in the NYBC’s 100-year history. During her 2020 – 2021 tenure, she provided leadership and direction to the industry during the COVID pandemic, spearheaded the Equity and Inclusion Task Force and Council, and celebrated the Centennial of the organization, including a book, a documentary, several industry symposiums, and the most successful gala in the NYBC history. She continues in a leadership role with the NYBC as the newly created Chair of the NYBC Council of Presidents.

Ms. Velez is a proud cheerleader and supporter for New York, as demonstrated by her many philanthropic, professional, and civic affiliations.

Ms. Velez is a graduate of Hofstra University, achieving both her Bachelors and Masters of Business Administration.
Brian Flores was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. Brian’s parents, Raul and Maria, left Honduras in the 1970’s to emigrate to Brooklyn, to end up raising five boys in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn: Raul, Jr.; Brian; twins Danny and Luis; and Christopher.

Brian was introduced to the game of football by his Uncle Darrell Patterson who played on the New York Fire Department’s football team. After driving by a field of young boys playing Pop Warner football, Brian expressed his desire to play, and Uncle Darrell signed him up. Brian went on to earn a scholarship to Poly Prep High School, a prestigious private school in Brooklyn. He excelled in both the classroom and on the football field and he earned a full football scholarship to Boston College where he earned his Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees. Flores played football at Boston College as a linebacker from 1999 through 2002.

After his senior year at BC, Flores wrote a letter to each of the 32 teams in the NFL, and the Patriots responded. Flores joined the Patriots as a Scouting Assistant which led to him eventually becoming a pro scout. After three years in personnel, Flores was promoted to the coaching staff, serving as a Special Teams Assistant. He would then go on to assist on the offensive side of the ball for a year, and ultimately move to the defensive side of the ball as a Coaching Assistant. After serving as the Safeties’ Coach for four seasons, Flores was named Linebackers’ Coach and two seasons later became the Patriots’ defensive play caller in 2018. In Flores’ last game with the Patriots, Super Bowl LIII, they defeated the Los Angeles Rams, 13–3, which was the lowest-scoring Super Bowl in NFL history.

After the Super Bowl win, Flores was hired as Head Coach of the Miami Dolphins. In three seasons in Miami, he led the Dolphins to a 24-25 overall record and guided the team to back-to-back winning seasons for the first time in nearly 20 years. Surprisingly, Flores was fired the day after the 2021 season had ended, completing a sweep of the New England Patriots. On February 1, 2022, Flores filed a landmark class-action lawsuit against the NFL and various teams for racial discrimination in the league’s treatment of minority coaches and executives. Amid the lawsuit, on February 19, 2022, The Pittsburgh Steelers announced the hiring of Flores as their Senior Defensive Assistant and Linebackers coach.

Above it all, Brian enjoys being a husband and a father, as he and his wife Jennifer have three beautiful children: Miles (9), Maxwell (7), and Liliana (5).
Cathleen Trigg-Jones is an award-winning journalist, social entrepreneur, and executive who is grounded by her core values: integrity, clarity, compassion, and drive. Cathleen began her career as a WBOC-TV news reporter which led to her becoming the press assistant to the then United States Delaware Senator, Joseph R. Biden, Junior. With a background in journalism, media production, public relations, and marketing, she has created and leads three independent media companies: iWomanTV; Catscape Productions; and Trigg Global Media. While working in New York City she was quickly recognized for her quality journalism, winning an Emmy Award for reporting and anchoring the WWOR and WNYW news broadcasts. Since that time, Cathleen has produced hundreds of projects and co-starred in more than two dozen TV shows and films, including Power, Madam Secretary, House of Cards, Homeland, We Are The Joneses and the Tupac Shakur biopic, All Eyes On Me. In addition to her Emmy Award, she has been honored with the Black Women In Media Award, A Child’s Hero Award by CASA of Essex, NJ, and the BMW Women of Excellence Award and has been nominated for the Women’s Image Network Award. In 2006, Cathleen created Trigg House, a nonprofit, direct-service organization to offer pre-emancipated foster care children the resources needed to help them make a smooth transition into the real world and independent living. She is a NY State Court Appointed Special Advocate for Foster Children and serves on the Boards of Operation Keloid, the Columbia University Double Discovery Center, and the Black Entrepreneur Initiative. Her businesses are certified by the NY/NJ Minority Supplier Development Council and operate as Minority Women Business Enterprises. She received her BA in Journalism from Delaware State University.

It is more than coincidence how events happen! A Harlem socialite was arrested in Harlem, the same year in 1960 that John Coltrane was making history with his Giant Steps. Without so much as a missed beat, the influential person about town was released from police custody with the assistance of attorney Robert Mangum. Little did anyone realize such a deliberate action would reveal the power of our people.

While David Dinkins was imparting the significance of why this prominent neophyte organization should be called One Hundred Black Men, John Coltrane was simultaneously taking the sound of jazz to the peripheral shores of new discovery.

Saxophonist, composer and innovator John Coltrane, from North Carolina honed his instrumental skills in Philadelphia before getting the call from Miles Davis to join him in New York as a member of what became known as Mile’s “first great quintet.”

Coltrane’s reputation preceded him from Philadelphia, his burning commitment to practice between gigs and into the morning hours as the moon kissed the early morning sun served as a preview of music to come from young Coltrane. His many recordings became earth shattering standards such as “My Favorite Things,” “A Love Supreme” and “Africa/Brass,” can go from “Africa” to “Alabama” in one rhythmic note!

Coltrane’s salute to excellence can be heard and even felt on his composition “Giant Steps!” This influential album title song “Giant Steps” and his improvisational solo (which has become the musical gold standard for all musicians to master) is a salute to musical excellence as the OHBM continues to improve the landscape in education, mentorship, health and wellness, and economic empowerment.

At the same time, Charlie Rangel, David Dinkins, J. Bruce Llewellyn, Jackie Robinson and other notable black founders were taking small but progressive civil steps that would lead to Giant Steps to Power.

John Coltrane, David Dinkins, and now Aldrin Enis...in 2022, the One Hundred Black Men of New York City continue to take Giant Steps to Power. We stand on the shoulders of our legendary black men, OHBM founders and artists. It is more than a coincidence how events happen!

“...progressive civil steps that would lead to Giant Steps to Power.”
Women's History Month has a new legend to be lauded in Midwin Charles. Her philanthropy, civic engagement, and scholarly work is one that will be studied and emulated by countless young women throughout the United States and the African Diaspora. Her contribution to humanity will be missed. - Pres. Aldrin K. Enis

Sometimes you meet people who are just good. Ms. Charles was a wonderful spirit and a dedicated professional to her work. She was a bright light for the community and the world. She just brought joy to any space she entered. Our 2021 Virtual Gala would not have been what it was without her. I count my blessings to have shared space with her. Charles E. Williams, Jr.

Wynton Marsalis (born October 18, 1961) is an American trumpeter, composer, teacher, and artistic director of Jazz at Lincoln Center. He has promoted classical and jazz music, often to young audiences. Marsalis has won nine Grammy Awards, and his Blood on the Fields was the first jazz composition to win the Pulitzer Prize for Music. He is the only musician to win a Grammy Award in both jazz and classical during the same year.
Eddie Jefferson was an American jazz vocalist and lyricist. He is the father of the jazz vocal innovation known as vocalese, a vocal musical style in which lyrics are set to an instrumental composition or solo. He wrote “Moody’s Mood For Love” and inspired or influenced many singing. He was a contemporary of King Pleasure, Jon Hendricks, and Lambert, Hendricks, and Ross. He was also a strong proponent of scatting, which is improvising sounds based on the song chords.

Haynes performing in San Francisco, 1981

By Ron Scott

From the beginning Haynes had an infectious beat, an improvisational rhythmic flow, a distinct sound that instinctively led such greats as Charlie Parker, Lester Young, Thelonious Monk, Sarah Vaughan, Stan Getz, Billie Holiday and Sonny Rollins to hire him as an integral part to their incredible bands.

"After playing with Charlie Parker and Lester Young I felt I would be important but not to this extent," noted Haynes. The iconic drummer just celebrated his 97th birthday.

A Salute to Excellence
The big band leader Lionel Hampton called her the “Kid” but she was known as Bebop Betty. Her furious complex scatting abilities that demonstrated an improvisational lyrical scale yet to be duplicated is now legendary. She started her own independent record label in 1969 Bet-Car Records in 1969 quite a Giant Step for a woman, who proved to be the entrepreneur and total jazz singer.
